FARO ADDS CFO TO EXECUTIVE TEAM; ANNOUNCES FUTURE CEO TRANSITION PLAN

LAKE MARY, Fla., Feb. 18 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- FARO Technologies, Inc. (Nasdaq: FARO) today announced the appointment of Barbara R. Smith as Chief Financial Officer, effective February 21, 2005. Ms. Smith, a 23-year veteran of Alcoa Inc., will take over the CFO duties from co-founder Greg Fraser, who will remain as Executive Vice President of the Company. "We are positioning ourselves for continued strong growth during the next few years, in particular with an emphasis on growing our Asian markets, new technology and business acquisitions and continued penetration into our existing markets," said Simon Raab, Chairman and CEO. With the addition of Ms. Smith to the executive team, both founders will be able to contribute their time and focus to these strategic initiatives.

"Barbara Smith's appointment is a result of an extensive search based on very high and clearly defined expectations for qualifications and personality fit within our senior executive team," said Raab. "Barbara's extensive experience in several of Alcoa's manufacturing segments is ideally suited to our needs as we continue to grow."

The Company also announced that, as part of the Board of Directors' strategic planning process with respect to CEO succession, it intends to enter into a transition agreement with Simon Raab, CEO. The Company expects that, beginning in March 2006, Mr. Raab will share CEO duties with Jay Freeland, President and COO, allowing Mr. Raab to focus on research and development and strategic initiatives.

"To date Jay has met all expectations set when he joined the Company, and I have no hesitation in entering into a transition agreement, which will have him begin to assume some CEO duties a year from now," Raab continued. "This agreement will allow me to focus on those things where I bring the most value to the Company, while providing for a smooth CEO transition."
